SERVING THE GRAND COULEE DAM AREA, WASHINGTON STATE

SEPTEMBER 10, 2014

Newsbriefs

Truck declared surplus

Grand Coulee's city council declared surplus a 1977 Ford F900 pumper truck at its meeting last Tuesday night. It's now up for sale and only has about 20,000 miles on it, but it has other problems relating to pumps, etc. The council also put some computer equipment on the surplus list.

Serving the library

Jovce DeChenne was named to fill a vacant position on the Grand Coulee Library Board. She was recommended to the council by chair Diane Canady. She replaces Terri McPherson who had served two terms on the board. The appointment is for five years.

Emergency services busy

Fire Chief Richard Paris reported to the Grand Coulee council last Tuesday that the city's ambulance was dispatched 35 times in August and the fire department had five calls for the same period.

Sticking to his guns

The council at Grand Coulee agreed to award police Chief Mel Hunt his two service revolvers upon his retirement Sept. 30. The vote was unanimous.

Comcast in the coulee

Grand Coulee council last Tuesday passed an ordinance approving Charter Communications franchise to Comcast Corporation.

Woman contracted virus in Grant County

A Pierce County woman who recently spent time in Grant County has been confirmed as having West Nile virus. The Tacoma-Pierce County Health Department has investigated the case and determined that she was likely exposed to the infected mosquitos during her stay in Grant County. So far this year, there have been four other cases. two in Benton and Walla Walla counties and two from out of state. New school ribbon cutting, tours set for Friday

by Roger S. Lucas

The public is invited to two events at the new K-12 school complex on Friday, Sept. 12.

The first is the official ribbon cutting, opening the new school. That's at 10 a.m., with dignitaries here to cut the ribbon.

Immediately after the ribbon cutting, to be held at the front door of the elementary school wing, the public will get its first opportunity to walk through the complex.

At 6-8 p.m. Friday evening, members of the public who didn't have a chance to catch the first opening, will have a chance to tour the building.

School patrons will be able to see the building at their own pace, and there will be school officials

The new Lake Roosevelt school complex, combining three schools into one, dominates the acreage once occupied by Wright Elementary School and the old Lake Roosevelt High School, the remnants of which are seen at left. The old classroom wing was demolished, but the rest of the school and the gym will receive new roofs and siding to match the new complex. The space in between the old and new is planned for a new gym, once funding is found. More pictures of the project are featured throughout this issue. — Scott Hunter photo

The 100,000 square foot building will house elementary, junior high and senior high students, in three separate buildings. Workers were installing sod last week, and bus lanes were being paved on Friday. Friday, a host of workers in-delayed this year so students wouldn't have to move after just a few weeks in class in their old buildings.

Friday, local school workers were stocking the kitchen as they prepare to serve some 675 students on the first day. There are two cafeterias, one for secondary students and the other for elementary students, served by a single kitchen located in between.

Prior to this year, food has been prepared in a kitchen in Center Elementary School and trucked to the other locations. Students at the old high school had to eat in the halls and other areas because the district didn't have seating areas for students.

While school will be open for all grades, there will still be some touch-up work going on.

Friday several of the classrooms had furniture in them, while some hallways were full of new furniture waiting to to be placed in others.

The district plans training on the use of new school technology and other things so staff will be ready to go next Monday.

by Roger S. Lucas

A dozen barbecue teams will compete in the Harvest Festival this weekend at North Dam Park.

It is estimated that the two-member teams will spend about $500 to compete in an effort to walk away with the grand prize of $1,000. Only two teams are local; the rest come from all over the Pacific Northwest.

The event with multiple areas of interest begins this Friday and concludes on Sunday. It's the Third Annual Harvest Festival and is sponsored by the Grand Coulee Dam Area Chamber of Commerce. The barbecue event is sponsored by the Pacific Northwest Barbecue Association with a total of $3,500 in prize money put up by the Coulee Dam Credit Union. The association will have about 20 officials here for the event, including head judge Jenny Beesler and coordinator LeRoy Payne.

The top two prizes in the barbecue competition are the grand champion with prize money of $1,000 and reserve champion with a cash prize of $540. Both get trophies.

Other prizes range from first place to sixth place with money and ribbons.

The teams and head chefs are: Bad Bones, Brian Gurney, Happy Valley, Oregon; Caveman BBQ, Keith Pursch, Spokane Valley; Drummin Up Barbe-

Currently the commission is in the process of developing qualifications for the job.

Longtime police Chief Mel Hunt plans to retire Sept. 30.

Cain and new Commissioner Bill Moore were the only two commissioners at Monday's meeting. Commissioner Mark Graves was not there Monday night.

Mayors consider high cost trailer

by Roger S. Lucas

There may soon be more room for that load of stuff you wanted to haul to the dump. The Regional Board of Mayors is considering the purchase of another transfer

The mayors have sought a used trailer to provide extra dumping room for several months but have been unable to find one. A used one would cost from $40,000 to $50,000.

The mayors Monday looked at a new one from Wilkens Industries, Inc., from Morris, Minn., at a cost of just over $100,000.

Competitors will prepare pork, brisket, chicken and ribs with special turn-in times. The final judging and sampling will be at 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Contest rules are strict and demanding, and competitors will be at their barbecue grills for the duration of the contest.

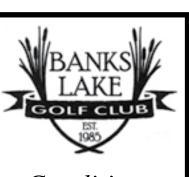

There's also a pie baking contest. If you can bake a berry or apple pie, heat up the oven and bring two pies down for the judging contest. One pie is for the judging and the other for sampling. Four local judges will make the decision.

Chamber of commerce officials stated that there will be over 30 sale booths and food vendors.

You can bring the entire family for the hay rides, pet costume contest, community-wide yard sale, helicopter rides, a motorcycle poker run that will send contestants on a 160-mile trip, and a beer garden for adult refreshments.

The beer garden will be open Friday from 5-10 p.m.; Saturday from 3-10; and Sunday during the barbecue judging.

Most events at the Harvest Festival are free, so bring the family and enjoy the fun.

Grand Coulee Dam is a key feature of Reclamation's Columbia Basin Project which provides both power and irrigation. This project serves irrigation to about 671,000 acres in east central Washington with over 300 miles of main canals. Power generated at the project is marketed by the Bonneville Power Administration.

Hungry Horse Dam stands 564 feet tall and was completed in 1953. It is located on the south fork of the Flathead River, 20 miles northeast of Kalispell, Montana.

County-Bureau to spend wide $1.85 million to burn ban replace transformer oil coolers lifted and moisture accompanying early fall weather and a reduction in the overall fire hazard, the Grant County Board of Comissioners and the County Fire Marshal announced Sept. 8, that the County Wide Burn Ban is being lifted, effective immediately.

Although the ban is lifted, please remember that the use of burn barrels is strictly prohibited. In addition, only natural vegetation may be burned (no household garbage).

For information regarding this otice, please contact the Commissioners' office at 509.754.2011 ext. 4228 or the Fire Marshal's office at ext. 44

The Bureau of Reclamation awarded a $1.85 million contract Sept. 2 to ABB, Inc. in Cary, North Carolina, to replace transformer oil coolers at Grand Coulee Dam.

Over the past several years the existing transformer oil coolers have shown the need for replacement, the bureau said in a press release. The contract will require furnishing and installing new transformer oil coolers, as well as disposal of the existing ones. The work is scheduled to be complete by April 30, 2015.

"This project is just one way Reclamation is continuing to ensure efficient and reliable power production in the Pacific Northwest," said Grand Coulee Power Manager Coleman Smith. "Replacing these transformer oil coolers will help to provide many more years of reliability at Grand Coulee Dam."

ABB is a global leader in power and automation technologies. ABB is the largest supplier of industrial motors and drives, the largest provider of generators to the wind industry, and the largest supplier of power grids worldwide.

Man sentenced to federal prison for multiple assaults

A Nespelem man was sentenced in federal court Sept. 3 for assault with a dangerous weapon, the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Washington said in press release last week. Vernon Mason Saulque, 32, pleaded guilty May 21, to four counts of the charge. Last Wednesday in United States District Court, Chief Judge Rosanna Malouf Peterson sentenced Saulque to a 21-month sentence on each count, to run consecutively, for a total of 84 months in federal years of court supervision after he is released.

According to information disclosed during the court proceedings, on July 13, 2013, Saulque was at the Colville Indian Reservation home of one of the victims, when he was asked to leave because of inappropriate behavior.

A few minutes later, the four victims got into a car and left the house. About one block from the house, Saulque, who had stepped out of his truck and waited for the

Jubilation all around

To celebrate the opening of the new Lake Roosevelt School, we've dedicated a lot of space throughout the paper this week to that coverage. You'll find photographs on most pages of the progress inside the building and out, and businesses have taken out advertisements in support of this truly great moment for our community.

That's something sensed by everyone, including those directly involved in the project itself, whether bending steel, or sweeping up.

"We're changing lives here," one proud worker said to a Star photographer outside the school last

The community has expressed that feeling to the workers, as well. "The people are happy," one man said as he helped to lay down asphalt last Friday. He said he'd been stopped in the grocery store, where people told him, "Thank you, thank you."

Along with the emotion, a few interesting facts should be embraced and remembered about the achievement, facts that may not be commonly

- 1. The federal Department of Interior did not pay for any part of the construction of the new school. You may encounter friends from other towns who will assume it did, this being a community built around federal projects.
- This is almost certainly the only public school built in modern times in the state of Washington to be constructed without one penny of debt placed on the community. Construction of public schools is financed with a mixture of state funds and local match paid by local property tax. But the lack of enough private property value, due to federal ownership, has kept local students in dilapidated schools for generations. And yet, we have no mortgage to pay. Which leads us to the third fact:

None of it would be possible without the leadership of the state senator from Wenatchee, who represents the 12th Legislative District, Sen. Linda Evans Parlette. It was she who laid the financial footwork early on to get us enough money to plan the facility and more. Then, with the facility plans in hand, and the push to pass jobs bills a hot topic in Olympia, this "shovelready" project was ripe for funding, with the strategic help of Sen. Parlette. Without her leadership, it would not have happened.

With the school set to open to students next Monday and for an open house to the community on Friday, please note that most of the photos in this issue were taken within the last two weeks. Many don't show a facility that looks like it is about to open, although much of the work left was of a kind that goes quickly, while holding up the big effort of actually moving furniture in. Hence, the place has looked like the mess you'd expect if you were moving furniture into your new house before the contractors were done building it.

It will be fun to see how much is left to do on Friday, but whatever is left will be trivial compared to the jubilation that should arise from seeing this beautiful, state-of-the-art facility.

This mascot skews reality about the first people

Jennifer Varenchik

Until recently, I never really paid much attention to the Native American mascot issue. "It's not my fight," I thought.

I live in Los Angeles County, home of the largest urban Native American and Alaska Native population in the United States. When I first moved to L.A. in the 1990s, I was constantly being asked if I was Latina. Sometimes people would get upset because I wasn't able to speak Spanish.

Occasionally, I would resort to sticking two fingers behind my head to act as a feather to illustrate being American Indian. Unfortunately, that's all I had to reach for to explain my heritage. Thinking back on those times is what has helped push me to get involved with the campaign to change the Washington football team name.

I grew up in a small, pictureperfect Northern California town. I was adopted by Caucasian parents and raised in a loving family, but the one thing I didn't have was exposure to my Native American culture.

I remember glimpsing major sporting events on television and seeing fans dressed up in the stands. As a child, I wondered if that was how my people dressed. How was I to know? I didn't have any Native American references around me.

Sure, I learned tidbits about Native American history in school, but nothing about modern Native American life. My exposure to my culture as a child was fans on television pretending to be Indians and tragic history lessons in school.

And you know what? That is all most of America has been exposed to as well. Just add casinos, and that's what most non-Native people know about our

In L.A., I began working for a Native American nonprofit organization that helps Native youth. I wanted them to be exposed to the real Native role models. We put posters of great past and modernday Native leaders on walls. We purchased books and DVDs that positively portrayed Native people, so the youth could see that Native Americans are more than history lessons and mascots.

A few years later, I had the privilege of being able to travel to Indian reservations around the country with another Native nonprofit group. I learned about different tribal traditions, met many wonderful people and grew a deeper appreciation for my culture. I was able to participate in various ceremonies and to hear speeches by some of the same people we had posters of at my first job. I was able to connect with many elders, tribal leaders and community organizers about what life was like on their reservation.

This brings me back to why I am involved with the mascot issue today. Now, I know better. Most of America doesn't.

In 2005, the American Psychological Association called for an end to Native American mascots, citing research that the presence of these mascots results in lower self-esteem among Native youth and increased negative attitudes by non-Native youth.

A lot of the low self-esteem and high levels of suicide among Native youth go back to not being able to see positive portrayals of role models in the media. Many Native people know that most of America doesn't really know much about us because we're not seen, especially on mainstream media.

With our culture being so wide and diverse, we want you to know more than the limited knowledge that comes from rooting for a team with a Native mascot.

Each area of this country has a different climate, and the first people here learned to adapt and live off the land. The Native people of the Northwest lived a very different lifestyle than the people of the Southwest. But with mascot imagery, everyone thinks all Natives are from the plains area. With more than 550 tribes in this country, these limiting images automatically leave out a large amount of Native Americans.

Shouldn't we get to choose how we are known? Me, I don't want to be known for feathers, tomahawks and war paint. I want to be able to say I'm Native American and the likely response is, "Oh, the first people."

Until I can tell people I am Native American and receive instant recognition, I will continue to do what I can to decrease negative stereotypes.

Please join me in this struggle. Let's create a new understanding of what it means to be Native Amerishut up!

This last weekend was the men's retreat again and once again a group of local men gathered and listened to how to be better dads, husbands and leaders. I am always in awe of the vast difference of the men that come to this gathering. Different life experiences and journeys to get to this point; sometimes if you stood back and peered through the window, you would have no idea what would be going on. From looking at the appearance of the group, you would have no idea what was the relationship all these fellows. Let me explain.

One man, with visible tattoos and a voice that reminds me of Rocky Balboa, had a sixthgrade boy following him around, making him laugh like he has not laughed in five years. As a matter of fact, they had not seen each other in five years. The father had prayed for a reunion since he was separated from his son. That reunion happened right before he left for the retreat and he brought his son with him. What a reunion, and what a treat for the rest of us to watch their interaction as they learned about each other, with a joy on their faces that will not be removed for a long time.

There was also an older man, tall, with a stature of a man who demanded respect in a former time. He is a retired police officer with years of being strong in the face of adversity. A well respected man that in his time worked the toughest streets and was called upon many times to put himself before danger and pray that he prevailed in the outcome. We see him as a strong, manly man. But as he shared, we got a glimpse of God protecting him his whole career. His humbleness could not be stopped from pouring out on the rest of us.

There was also a young father. A father that could be seen on every break, busy writing a letter, a letter that was of obvious importance. When asked what he was writing, the answer sent chills down the others listening about a tradition that was started long ago, of writing letters to his daughters for their birthdays. We let that soak in a bit. The girls that receive these letters may not understand the importance of these writings now, but down the road these words of wisdom, faith and love will become treasures that cannot be compared to anything. This man is doing something so right that future generations of his family will cherish as pure gold.

There was also a man surprised by the appearance of his son at this event, a man who struggled with addictions, a man waiting for God to tell him where to go next, a man with a vision, a man with little hope and a man knowing he had reached rock

> One man in particular caught my eye. He was quiet and trying not to disrupt anything. He was waiting for something to happen. He did not know what it was but he knew he had to be ready, that was why he was here. He was sure that the opportunity to be there for somebody would come. In the last few hours it finally happened. Someone from his past stepped into the dining room and he knew immediately that this was it. The two embraced and then talked. The man had hit the bottom of life and was seeking someone to help him climb out. That is just what they are going to do. Help each other. This group, from looking at them on the outside, does not appear to have much in common. In fact, most have very little in common on the outside. but on the inside they had everything in common. They all struggled on a day-to-day basis to be the men God had called them to be. They had failed on countless occasions to do what was required of them in the Holy One's eyes. But Faith, Hope and Love of a father that we have never met face-to-face builds them up and, much like the father who prayed he would see his son again and did this weekend, our Father continues to have that kind of compassion for us, that we would return to him and all is forgiven. We cannot out-sin that kind of love. It is not just there for the men at the retreat, it is there for you too. God has been writing you letters every day; it is time to pull them out and reread them.

Man wanted for "burglary" and more

by Roger S. Lucas

Police are looking for a man on a variety of charges, including bur-

Raymond L. John, 20, whose driver's license gave an address as 4117 Rocky River HUD Road, Omak, eluded officers on several occasions after entering a house on Bowen Street in Grand Coulee, police

A man and woman at a home at 231 Bowen, who said they don't know John, told police he came in through a sliding door and sat down on the couch with them.

The incident occurred about 3:30 p.m. last Wednesday, and police responded to a burglary-in-progress call.

Seated on the couch was Stephanie Anderson-Fisher and her boyfriend who asked John what he wanted. When he started looking through nearby clothing and was asked what he was looking for he replied, "numbers." Asked to leave, he headed back to the same the rear door, but was told to use the front door.

Shortly after he left, police arrived and were told the intruder was wearing a red 49'er coat and a grey hat.

Later, police Chief Mel Hunt found John, who stepped off the road to relieve himself and then fled.

Hunt later observed the man on the hillside below Hill Avenue. Hunt contacted him again, and the man fled for the second time. Two other officers became involved, Sean Cook and Gary Moore.

The suspect was spotted again and eluded police near Crescent Bay. Charges include first-degree criminal trespass; vehicle prowl; thirddegree theft; third-degree escape; obstructing a law enforcement officer; and making false statements to a police officer.

Grand Coulee police have the man's billfold in their evidence room and are looking for him.

er by Colville Tribal Police.

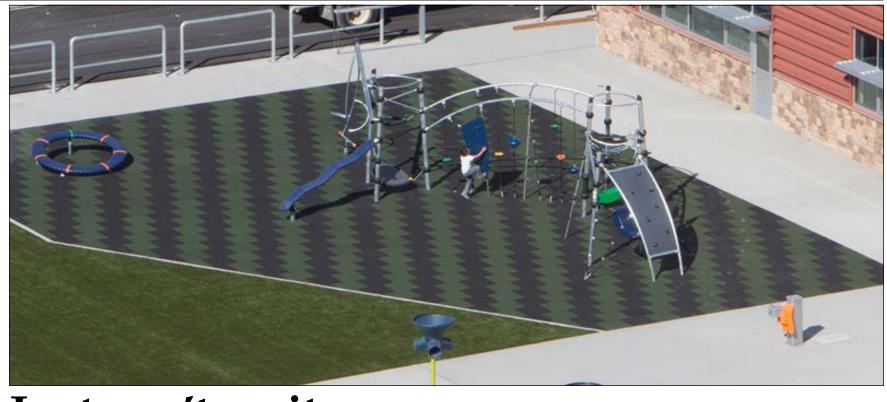

"Firearm violence is a significant issue in this country and we are very appreciative of the hard work and complete investigation done by the Colville Tribal Police and the FBI," United States Attorney Michael C. Ormsby stated.

The United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Washington is, and will continue to be, committed to aggressively prosecuting violent crimes, especially those committed with firearms that occur within federal jurisdiction, including the Indian reservations in the District, Ormsby said.

This investigation was conducted by FBI and the Colville Tribal Police Department, with the assistance of the Washington State Patrol

The case was prosecuted by Rudy J. Verschoor, an assistant U.S. attorney for the district.

Keller Ferry out of service for repairs

Water seeping through hairline crack in Sanpoil hull

KELLER- The Keller Ferry across the Columbia River on State Route 21 is out of service until further notice, the Washington Department of Transporation said Tuesday afternoon.

Water is seeping into one of the Sanpoil's internal compartments through a hairline crack below the waterline. The DOT advised the US Coast Guard of the issue shortly after 1 p.m., Tuesday, Sept. 9, and the vessel was taken out of passenger service.

The 1.75-inch hairline crack is located on the port side of the vessel about 14 feet back from the front propeller. The seepage site is in the hull plate just above the Foss Maritime of Seattle, inspected the boat Tuesday and located the small crack in the aluminum plate. The cause has not yet been DOT is working with Foss to reach their destinations.

Divers from the vessel builder, Maritime to determine what repairs will be required and how the work will be done. There is no estimate on costs or when the ferry service will resume. Drivers will need to use alternate routes

Phone and Internet Discounts Available to CenturyLink Customers

The Washington Utilities and Transportation Commission designated CenturyLink as an Eligible Telecommunications Carrier within its service area for universal service purposes. CenturyLink's basic local service rates for residential voice lines are $15.00 per month and business services are $30.00 per month. Specific rates will be provided upon request.

CenturyLink participates in a government benefit program (Lifeline) to make residential telephone service more affordable to eligible low-income individuals and families. Eligible customers are those that meet eligibility standards as defined by the FCC and state commissions. Residents who live on federally recognized Tribal Lands may qualify for additional Tribal benefits if they participate in certain additional federal eligibility programs. The Lifeline discount is available for only one telephone per household, which can be either a wireline or wireless telephone. A household is defined for the purposes of the Lifeline program as any individual or group of individuals who live together at the same address and share income and expenses. Lifeline service is not transferable, and only eligible consumers may enroll in the program. Consumers who willfully make false statements in order to obtain Lifeline telephone service can be punished by fine or imprisonment and can be barred from the

- Officers responded to a call about a disturbance on Bowen Street and were told that a man with a crowbar who was wanted on a warrant had been at the residence and then left before police arrived. No threats were made but the residents were uneasy about the man.

- Police were called to an apartment on Federal Avenue where a couple had been yelling at each other over an infidelity issue. The woman stated that she was going to leave for the evening until things cooled down.

A resident on Sunset Drive told officers of threatening notes being left at his home by a man who had done some work for him. Notes were made on cardboard, plexi-glass and a white utility tub. It was suggested that the man get an anti-harassment order from the court.

USBR Plant Protection advised that a vehicle had knocked down a speed limit sign about a mile north of Grand Coulee on SR-155. Police searched for a vehicle with damage to the front of 9/3 - Police were advised by USBR Plant Protection of two people fishing after hours south of the canal at North Dam Park. The pair were advised that they were in a closed area and left with a verbal warning.

- Police checked in on a woman who had given her son a car for graduation but had taken it back after he moved out and took up with a girlfriend. The mother stated that she would give the car back when the boy transferred the title and got insurance. Police told both that it was a civil matter and may have to be resolved by the court.

- A woman on Weil Place told police that her dog was barking and that it was a different bark, not one about a deer. Police noted that there were some deer nearby. The officer agreed to patrol the 9/4 - USBR Plant Protection reported that there was a man near Pole Park who was holding a sign reading: "Will work for food." Police couldn't find the man but found a sign.

USBR Plant Protection asked an officer to check on a van parked on the access road to the 500 Switchyard. The officer found a man who was talking on his cell 9/5 - Police found a Canadian driver in a parked truck sleeping in the the overlook area just above Grand Coulee Dam. He was told he couldn't park there overnight and left the area.

- A man who reportedly was moving to the west side of the street was arrested and taken to Grant County Jail for third-degree malicious mischief and violating a court order to stay away from his former live-in girlfriend. The man had allegedly confronted her over a lawn mower and then broke the side window in her vehicle. He was found at Coulee Medical Center getting stitches for a cut hand and after treatment was taken to jail.

- An Elmer City driver was stopped because his vehicle license was outdated, and police discovered two warrants out for his arrest. The officer reported August 2014 – my home weather station received 1.55 inches, and the Grand Coulee Dam weather site got 1.76 inches. The mean for August is 0.41 inches, with an alltime 1.75 inches in 1941.

Do you see a new record? I certainly did, and the National Weather Service office in Spokane confirmed it too. One side note: the Grand Coulee Dam weather site is not considered an "official" weather site by the National Weather Service. Maybe it's time our community establish an official weather site for our region!

We had just one day that exceeded the 100°F mark, and it was on Aug. 5. We had 13 days that exceeded the 90°F mark. The mean temperature for August is 71.9°F, and for 2014 we had a mean of 74.1°F. The all-time low was in 1951 at 38°F. Our low for the month of August was 53.5°F.

Haboobs occur around the planet where dry landscapes are found, like ours. The Southwest United States is a common place for occurrences. During the Dust Bowl era, these massive dust storms were very common, though the word haboob wasn't Haboobs are created by severe thunderstorms and the down drafts that exist within those storms. When the cool air is forced down and pushed forward by the front of a fast traveling thunderstorm cell, all the dust and debris is dragged along and eventually dropped. Winds can exceed 60 mph, stirring up dust and sand and create a blowing wall that can be as high as 10,000 feet. Haboobs usually last up to about 30 minutes.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA)

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) (20 U.S.C. § 1232g; 34 CFR Part 99) is a Federal law that protects the privacy of student education records. The law applies to all schools that receive funds under an applicable program of the U.S. Department of Education.

FERPA gives parents certain rights with respect to their children's education records. These rights transfer to the student when he or she reaches the age of 18 or attends a school beyond the high school level. Students to whom the rights have transferred are "eligible

*Parents or eligible students have the right to inspect and review the student's education records maintained by the school. Schools are not required to provide copies of records unless, for reasons such as great distance, it is impossible for parents or eligible students to review the records. Schools may charge a fee for copies.

*Parents or eligible students have the right to request that a school correct records, which they believe to be inaccurate or misleading. If the school decides not to amend the record, the parent or eligible student then has the right to a formal hearing. After the hearing, if the school still decides not to amend the record, the parent or eligible student has the right to place a statement with the record setting forth his or her view about the contested information.

*Generally, schools must have written permission from the parent or eligible student in order to release any information from a student's education record. However, FERPA allows schools to disclose those records, without consent, to the following parties or under the following conditions (34 CFR § 99.31):

- School officials with legitimate educational interest;
- Other schools to which a student is transferring; Specified officials for audit or evaluation purposes;
- Appropriate parties in connection with financial aid to a student;
- Organizations conducting certain studies for or on behalf of the
- Accrediting organizations;
- To comply with a judicial order or lawfully issued subpoena;
- Appropriate officials in cases of health and safety emergencies;
- State and local authorities, within a juvenile justice system, pursuant to specific State law.

Schools may disclose, without consent, "directory" information such as a student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, honors and awards, and dates of attendance. However, schools must tell parents and eligible students about directory information and allow parents and eligible students a reasonable amount of time to request that the school not disclose directory information about them. Schools must notify parents and eligible students annually of their rights under the Grand Coulee Dam School District may be eligible for a free developmental screening. Interested parents should request forms for a developmental screening and health inventory from the School District Office. It is especially important for a parent to complete the forms if they think their child may be developmentally delayed, i.e. be in need of occupational/physical or speech therapy, or other possible health problems that may impede a child from being ready for learning. Completed forms need to be returned to the District Office.

Completed forms submitted by parents/guardians will be reviewed and a determination will be made as to whether the child needs to be scheduled for additional Childfind Screening and/or assessments.

Parents/guardians will be notified of results of the developmental screening as soon as possible. Parents/guardians of children considered in need of additional services will be notified to schedule further assessments.

To request developmental screenings and health inventory forms please call Debbie VanGeystel at 633-2143 Monday-Thursday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

BBCC offers classes and expands H.S. diploma options

Students in the local area have had opportunities to sharpen their skills in preparation for the GED exams, improve workplace skills, and prepare for college; and that's still true. Now, however, adults who lack a high school diploma have a new way to get a second chance. It's called "High School 21+," a competency-based high school diploma offered at Washington's community and technical colleges.

Adults 21 years old and older can combine Big Bend Basic Skills courses with a variety of prior experiences to earn a high school diploma. An instructor and BBCC registration personnel will evaluate transcripts, knowledge gained from life experience, as well as any employment and volunteer history to work with the student to craft an educational plan to meet graduation requirements.

For information on how to participate in this program locally, please contact Linda Black at Iblack ged@yahoo.com or 633-3611. Sessions for adult basic skills, GED preparation, and HS21+ begin September 23. Minimum enrollment required.

Lady Raider Volleyball travelled to Davenport Sept. 6, for the season opening tourney. Only 13 Lady Raiders (seven varsity, six JV) were practice eligible to partake in the tournament. The small numbers hurt the Lady Raiders in matches where the opponents were able to sub out players but LR was not. LRlost to Omak, Almira/ Coulee-Hartline, Davenport in two-game sets. The Ladies also lost to Bridgeport in a three-game set to round out

"This is always a challenging tournament as we face teams who had very successful volleyball programs over the years," Head Coach Nate Piturachsatit said. "Even though we lost, there are always positives."

One of those positives was in the Bridgeport match.

"We went to three games with Bridgeport, and losing a close third game," he said. "Bridgeport was the number-one team in our league last year and look to be just as strong."

Jocelyn Moore impressed Piturachsatit by leading the team in blocks. "At one point she had four blocks in a row versus ACH, which gave our team some much needed energy and momentum," he said.

Piturachsatit said he was pleased with the way the Lady Raiders kept their opponents out of step with tough serving.

> A place the team can improve, he said, was defense; many games were lost by poor defense.

Pitu-Coach rachsatit believes his team will take the losses at Davenport as an impetus to improve for the coming weeks.

"These girls have potential," he said. "Now it's our job to get them to perform at their poten-

This week the Lady Raiders play two matches on the road. Tomorrow LR heads to scorched Liberty Bell to take on the Mt. Lions, starting at 5:30 p.m. On Saturday LR heads south to Soap Lake to take on the Eagles in matches starting at 1 p.m. This will be Soap Lake's third match of the week after taking on Bridgeport on Tuesday and Cashmere on Thursday.

October—February

A new Block of the Month based on my '1892 Rondure' quilt. Offered on the 1st and 3rd Tuesdays. $35/month or $150 up front. Intermediate difficulty, includes pattern.

Simple projects for all skill levels:

September 23

- Elephant's Play

$25, includes pattern.

Several fabric combinations available in studio. Two pieced blocks make this a quick graphical baby quilt. Make many of them and get a beautiful design that doesn't look like Elephant's at all.

September 30 - Zoe

$25, includes pattern. Fishy Fishy fabrics used in this version, available in the studio. Machine appliqué techniques are taught, but any method could be used. A great quick baby quilt that keeps their eyes moving with interest. October 14 & 28

- Turning Twenty;* $25 + pattern *Many variations available A great quilt design for a variety of fabrics. Consider using Bass, Trout, Walleye panels and coordinates available in studio.

November 11 & 25

- Hugs and Kisses $25, includes pattern

This uses 5 lights and 5 darks and uses all the fabric specified. Efficient sewing and cutting methods make this one go together quickly and easily. A lap size for cuddling on the couch.

January 13 & 27, 2015

- Mi Amore

$25 + pattern

This valentine special can be made into any theme by changing the colors and appliqué shapes. Learn how to use an ombre fabric and get 4 shades of the same color out of the same piece of fabric.

Little known facts about the new school complex

Things to consider as you walk through the new Lake Roosevelt School

by Roger S. Lucas

The public is in for some surprises when they tour the new school complex in Coulee Dam this Friday:

- Polished concrete floors sparkle and give off a sense of expensive treatment. Workers have ground square borders in areas to resemble tiles.

- Rooms in the elementary wing have colored canopies over the doors, which match colors inside the room, so younger students can find their classrooms.

- Outside each classroom, a small panel gives the teacher's name and where they went to college.

- Every classroom has a great view of the out-ofdoors, when you're standing. Windows are at a strategic level to discourage too much window gazing, while allowing natural light in.

- Classroom lighting will respond to the amount of light reflecting from desktops. Sunnier days will take less electricity automatically.

- Light switches are actually remote panels to manage each room from a central environmental control.

- Classrooms are equipped with an infrared public address system, so teachers can be heard easily, even when students are engaged in a noisy activity -- or are just excited.

- The view from the tops of the stairwells affords a spectacular view of the hills.

- On the outside of the building, the stone work is colored to match the color of the granite cliffs on the hills surrounding the area.

- Storage units ("cubby holes" without doors) will be available for students in the lower grades. Older students get traditional lockers.

- Secondary students will enjoy the large home economics and science lab rooms in the junior-senior high school wing.

- Outdoor play areas feature rubber-based surfaces, actual green grass to play on, concrete, or artificial turf for the special activities each area offers.

- Some tables in the secondary-wing cafeteria will feature the Lake Roosevelt logo where students receiving special honors can sit.

- Technology galore -- more than 31 miles of networking cables for technology runs through the walls of the new school. Each classroom will have several computers in it, besides those planned for the computer lab.

- Classroom furniture, all new, is designed so pieces can be placed together for group studies.

- The two libraries were stocked with books and other library supplies late this week. Some $20,000 worth of books and other materials were received from the North Central Regional Library District; that organization also helped with the move of books from the three former libraries.

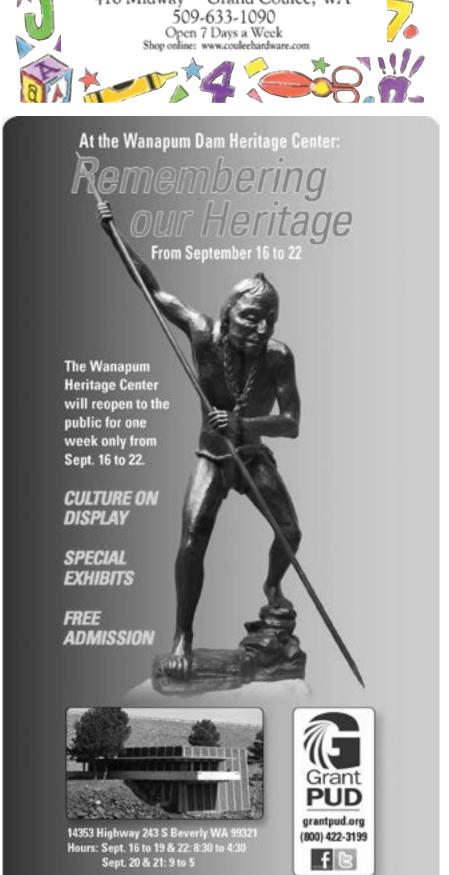

- The Otis Elevator Company has tested and approved the lone elevator in the building. It will take people and supplies from the lower level of the school to the upper level.

- The secondary wing will have a student store, where students can purchase different types of ma-were the winners of the bicycles given away through summer reading program at the local library. Every summer reader participants that read 10 hours had their name put into the drawing for the bikes. Other prizes were awarded throughout the summer for the hours read. A total of 1323 hours read were turned into the library. Both bikes were donated by the Free Masons of Washington to the Etheta Anderson City Library / Grand Coulee Library in their "Bikes-4-Books" program.
