Savannah Hobrecht-Nissen, right, wasn't too traumatized playing a shooting victim during an exercise Saturday at Coulee Medical Center designed to get multiple agencies prepared for an "active shooter" in case one ever strikes the hospital. The drill attracted some 14 agencies from the region, including fire, law enforcement and emergency medical services, plus participants from Quincy and Tonasket. Omak dealership purchased by Jess

by Roger S. Lucas

Jess Ford in Grand Coulee has purchased Damskov Auto Sales in Omak. This will be the third auto store under the Jess family name. The Omak location is 707 Okama Drive, and will eventually become Jess Auto.

"We have taken over operations of the Omak agency while all the final details are concluded," Wade Jess said Monday. The Jess family purchased its Grand Coulee operation from L.F. "Buss" Carlson in 1991, and the Ford dealership on Grand Avenue in Pullman, Washington, in 2004. Speaking of the Damskov purchase, Wade Jess said that his son, Cody Jess and a nephew, Brandon Jess, will represent the family at the new Omak location. "Our Omak location will allow us to offer a wider selection of vehicles for our customers," he said last week. The Omak dealership sells the Ford, Dodge, Chrysler, and Jeep brands.

Business owner surrenders after alleged assault on police

by Roger S. Lucas

A former Electric City man and owner of local exercise facility, Body by Dam, reportedly turned himself in at the Grant County Sheriff's Office last Thursday after charges were filed alleging he assaulted local police last April. He had been listed as a fugitive and had disappeared, along with his 7-year-old daughter, after charges were filed against him for alleged assault on three Grand Coulee police officers. Grant County authorities asserted that Lyle A. Floyd, 47, had been having some mental health issues and had made threats against law enforcement officers. Floyd, who currently lives in Nine Mile Falls, voluntarily turned himself in, and his daughter is reportedly safe and unharmed. The three counts of assault of police officers stem from an encounter last April, after police say it was reported that a black Toyota pickup was seen speeding down the Wilbur hill on SR-174 at an estimated 100 mph just after 9 p.m. Three officers — Sgt. Gary Moore, and officers Joe Higgs and Adam Florenzen — were waiting for the pickup at the edge of town. But when Floyd came into town at a legal speed and saw the of-

Bureau extends comment time for big overhaul

The Bureau of Reclamation is extending the public comment period for a proposed multi-year powerplant overhaul project at two Grand Coulee Dam powerhouses. The initial 30-day comment period ended Nov. 7; however, at the public's request, it has been extended to Nov. 21. Reclamation is requesting public and agency input to help identify issues to be addressed in an environmental assessment for the proposed project to overhaul the 18 generating units in the left and right powerhouses. The 18 generating units and three station service units have been in operation for over 70 years and are starting to have mechanical problems from age-related wear and design, a press release from Reclamation said. The agency would upgrade components of the generating units, modernize three station service generators, conduct maintenance

John Nordine, veteran of two wars, tried three times to get in

by Roger S. Lucas

John Nordine is living proof that the third time is the charm. That's how many times he tried to enlist in the Army before he was accepted.

The first two times, John was rejected because he was just under 5 feet tall and just under 100 pounds.

The third time John tried, he had a little help from a helpful doctor who measured his height while he was wearing cowboy boots and weighed him with all his clothes on, of which he had plenty. "I measured five feet and a quarter inch and just over 100 pounds," Nordine laughs.

That was his start in a nine-year Army career, with a year in Vietnam that was bookmarked by two assignments to Korea.

Nordine ended as a staff sergeant and with a lot of memories he is reluctant to share. "I don't talk about it much," he said. "I have spent the past 30 years trying to forget it."

His father, an Army veteran who was captured in the Philippines at the beginning of World War II, didn't talk about his experiences either. John's father, Carl, survived the Bataan Death March and spent three and a half years in a prisoner of war camp. "I can't remember my father ever talking about his time as a POW," John noted.

John was born in California, and spent time driving truck and some 20 years in the "baby breath" business in Omak.

While in Vietnam, November to November 1966-67, Nordine served on a 10-member reconnaissance team that went out in the northern part of the country looking for enemy forces. They would be out for a week or two. "We would carry about 60-pound packs that largely held food and extra ammo," Nordine would be too heavy." The team would often sleep on the ground, get in firefights, and "then we would walk out, rest, and then do it again," Nordine said. "When we returned to camp they would have new shoes, clothes, and everything new for us, and we'd just throw our shoes and clothes away," he stated. "The jungle was tough on shoes and clothes and we didn't carry any extra with us because our packs

Earlier, Nordine had spent a year in Korea where he did patrols near the 38th parallel, the dividing line between South and North Korea. After a year in Vietnam, he returned to the U.S. and then was sent back to Korea for his second tour there. "On my second tour, I built roads," Nordine said. Winter in Korea was especially tough, he added.

Centenarian dam worker dies

by Roger S. Lucas

A 100-year-old Odessa man, who was the oldest living man known to work on Grand Coulee Dam, has died.

Edwin Kerns, who in his latter years, returned to Grand Coulee Dam on his birthday, May 25, passed away Nov. 3. His full obituary is on page four in this week's Star Newspaper.

Employees at the Visitor Center honored Kerns each year when he returned to view Grand Coulee Dam, and especially last May 25, on his 100th birthday.

Kerns worked on the dam from 1935 to 1939.

While here on his 100th birthday, Kerns received best wishes from the VC staff and from people visiting the center when they realized why he was there. He was taken on a special tour of the dam. See the June 1, 2016, issue of the Star for the complete story.

Kerns at the time said his first job at the dam had been breaking up rocks with a sledge-hammer; but after his wrists swelled up he was given a job pushing a broom for 50 cents an hour, good wages for the middle of the Great Depression.

There was a lot of pride during construction, Kerns reported last May, and "we knew we were doing something important."

See additional information on Kerns on page four.

Talking about his 10-member reconnaissance team in Vietnam was particularly tough for Nordine. It started to bring back memories of team members wounded and killed.

"I don't go to reunions or try to communicate with recon members, with one exception," he said. "One of my team members was a friend since I was 9 years old. He lives on the west side, and when I go over there, he is one of the first places I go."

page of the penstocks, and update or replace the overhead cranes.

The project scope includes new generator winding and stator cores for the main unit generators; new static digital excitation systems; digital governor control systems; local unit controls and generator relay protection systems; penstock lining repair or replacement; replacement or modernization of the nine crane servicing the powerhouses; modernization of three station service generators in the left powerhouse; and replacement or refurbishment of the iso-phase bus and circuit breakers.

Reclamation is considering alternatives including no action, working on two units at a time, or modernization and overhauling just one unit at a time. The two-at-a-time scenario would start in the spring of 2018 and finish in 2029. The one-at-a-time option could extend the work up to seven years.

officers, it was alleged, he sped up and then was stopped by police.

Police say that Floyd at that point refused to cooperate and tried to drive off. When officers tried to force him out of his pickup, Floyd at one point pinned Moore's wrist until he was tasered by Higgs, police reported. It had no effect, their report stated, and Floyd lifted Florenzen off the ground with one arm and threatened to turn Higgs' own taser on him. Floyd was tasered twice more.

His struggle pitted him against all three police officers before he was finally restrained, they reported.

Floyd told The Star last spring that police had tasered him while he was still in his seat belt.

He was taken to Grant County jail, but was released until felony assault charges were filed by Grant County prosecutors recently, and Floyd temporarily fled with his daughter.

Stevens County and Spokane County law enforcement officials had issued statements that Floyd was being sought on the assault charges. He is not listed as an inmate in the county jail.

Some contested local elections are very close

by Scott Hunter

With more than a third of the ballots left to count Tuesday night, Chris Branch's bid to take Sheila Kennedy's District 1 seat on the Okanogan County Board of Commissioners was ahead 53 percent to 47 percent.

In Grant County, Superior Court Judge David Estudillo's bid to keep his job was hanging on by a 1.42-percent margin.

Branch was leading 3,613 votes to Kennedy's 3,199. The county Auditor's Office said 7,427 ballots remain to be counted, plus ballots from drop boxes. The next count will occur Monday by 5 p.m.

Another close margin separates Andy Hover and Ashley Thrasher, who were vying for the Okanogan County Commission seat for District 2. Hover was leading, 3,141 or 53 to 46 percent.

Hover and Thrasher had bested current Commissioner Ray Campbell in the primary election to represent the western half of the county.

For the superior court position in Grant County, Estudillo, appointed by Democratic Gov. Jay Inslee over a year ago, nevertheless had gained significant endorsements from county Republicans.

Tuesday night he barely led longtime county lawyer Nick Wallace 10,751 to 10,448 votes, 50.71 to 49.29 percent. The county elections office estimated 2,000 ballots left to count.

Grant County Commissioner Richard Stevens prevailed over challenger Robert Dove 62 to 38 percent to represent District 1, including Grand Coulee and Electric City. Tom Taylor won in District 2 over Nathan Pick, 69-31 percent.

Douglas County Fire District 3's Proposition 1 to lift a property tax levy for fire and emergency services was failing with a dead even vote, 30-30.

But Lincoln County's proposition to boost sales and use tax, heavily promoted by County Sheriff Wade Magers, passed 58-42 percent.

In Legislative District 12, Rep. Brad Hawkins will move to the State Senate after beating Jon Wyss 56 to 44 percent.

District 7 Rep. Joel Kretz will keep his Position 2 seat in the state House. The Republican handed Libertarian Mike Foster his hat 79 to 21 percent.

Republican Marty McClendon, a Lake Roosevelt High School graduate and conservative talk radio host who visited his alma mater to talk with local students this fall, lost to Democrat Cyrus Habib for the state's lieutenant governor seat, 56 to 44 percent.

We'll figure it out together

No matter what just happened, we're all in this together.

Regardless of which candidate won the presidential election, or any others you're watching closely, the republic, state and county will survive, especially with our help.

Note that collective "our" that indicates it's up to all of us to move on and work together, whether we like those on the other side of the argument or not.

That can be especially difficult if you're convinced, as so many seem to be, that those whose views you just can't stomach are either stupid or evil.

Here's a viewpoint that may help alleviate the pain of transition from campaign season to reality: Their views, what you may regard as their inconceivable alternative reality, are just as necessary to the survival of society as yours.

You can argue with that all you want, but the fact is that not one of us alone is wise enough to steer this boat we're all in, and there is a good reason that we all disagree. In fact, if we didn't, we'd be in big trouble. We each like to believe that we are quite rational, that we make good decisions based on facts. The reality, though, is quite different.

The truth is that every decision we make is based on emotion, which we only justify with rationale. There are many variations but only two basic emotions: love and fear. All else springs from those two. Fear is the most effective and immediate, but lasting good only comes from love. Both are necessary, and each tends to lead to the emergence of one world view or the other. And the existence of both of those views is necessary for our survival. None are wise enough to know which view is the most useful at any point in time, but perhaps together all of us are.

So no matter if your side won or lost, take a deep breath and get ready to work with the other side. Some of their views are right, and some of yours are wrong, but together, we'll figure it out in the long run.

Honoring America's defenders

The nation which forgets its defenders will itself be forgotten — President Calvin Coolidge said it well almost 100 ago. Friday is Veterans Day, when we as a nation honor those who have answered the call to defend our way of life. We exercise and enjoy our freedoms every day, and we owe special recognition of every American man and woman who has served in uniform.

On November 11, Veterans Day ceremonies will take place across the country. Citizens will gather in assembly to pay tribute to the memory and service of our warriors by singing the words of the Star-Spangled Banner—that ours is "the land of the free and the home of the brave." We will pledge allegiance to the flag, with hands on our hearts, while remembering Americans who fulfilled their pledge to our republic, our indivisible nation under God, with everything they had to give. We will take a moment and pray for the mothers and fathers, sisters and brothers, husbands and wives, and sons and daughters whose loved one made the decision to defend all of us, and never returned home.

Washington is home to more than 600,000 veterans, so as Washingtonians, we each have the opportunity to honor a veteran we know. An appropriate way to honor veterans is to simply say "thank you for your service" to someone who served in uniform, or to the family members of those who are currently serving. We should honor them not just with our words, but with our actions as well.

One local veteran who comes to my mind is U.S. Army veteran Donald Siefken from Kennewick, Washington. I sat down with Mr. Siefken, now a retired truck driver, last week to discuss his own story, which unfortunately includes mistreatment at the Seattle Veterans Administration. Mr. Siefken's story inspired my work on the Veterans Emergency Treatment (VET) Act to require that every enrolled veteran is afforded the highest level of emergency care at every emergency-capable medical facility under VA jurisdiction. Passing legislation to fix problems at the VA is one way to honor our veterans. Because we remember our veterans, past and present, with our actions.

The words inscribed on the Korean War Memorial say: Our nation honors her sons and daughters who answered the call to defend a country they never knew and a people they never met. May we never forget the price of our freedom. These brave Americans fulfilled their pledge to defend us, and we remember and honor all who answered that call this Friday.

Even voting is at issue in this election

One of the more intriguing aspects of this unusual election year is the extent to which the underpinning of the election itself — voting — has become an issue in its own right. An act that we used to take for granted is increasingly being called into question.

Just look at the headlines from the past few months. Russia, it seems clear, is trying to meddle in the process, sowing confusion and distrust about the integrity of the vote and about the vibrancy and fairness of our democracy. There have been questions about the cyber-security of voting infrastructure across the country — "States Unprepared for Election Day Cyber Attack," ran the headline on a Politico story ten days before the election.

There are worries about the fragility of our voting system in general, what with its patchwork of procedures, obsolete machinery, and increasingly complex training requirements for poll workers. And, of course, you've got the cries from one of the presidential candidates that the entire system is rigged against him.

But perhaps most notable of all, we're faced with a fundamental disagreement among state governments, which are charged with protecting Americans' most basic right, as to how they should treat it. Some states are seeking to constrain voting, instituting restrictive registration requirements, limiting access to the ballot box with ID requirements, and even imposing shorter hours for early voting and for voting on Election Day. In essence, they're trying to limit voter turnout. Other states are moving in the opposite direction, trying to expand the ease with which citizens can vote by knocking down barriers.

These are mostly, but not entirely, partisan stances. Jim Sensenbrenner, the senior Republican from Wisconsin in the House of Representatives, noted in a March New York Times commentary, "Ensuring that every eligible voter can cast a ballot without fear, deterrence and prejudice is a basic American right. I would rather lose my job than suppress votes to keep it."

Still, members of his party generally support restricting voting; Democrats support expanding the vote. Politicians in each party tend to see the issue through a partisan lens: they support positions which they believe will help them win elections.

I'm with Jim Sensenbrenner on this one. The right to cast a vote is fundamental in a democracy. It is the preeminent emblem of American citizenship — indeed, the right to vote is synonymous with being a citizen, the essential attribute of American freedom.

The history of our country can be written in part by tracking who has the right to vote. The 15th Amendment gave it to African-American men; women of all races won the right after World War I; discrimination at the polls constricted the vote for many decades, until the Voting Rights Act of 1965 once again bolstered access to the ballot; 18-year-olds were given the vote six years later. Over many decades, from the 19th century on, the electorate has expanded, contracted, and expanded again.

These days, you pretty much need a scorecard to keep track of voting rights in the U.S., although I believe that in the long run, seeking to undermine the privilege of voting is a losing cause. The courts have been getting heavily involved, and in recent years have often overturned, challenged or blocked some of the more restrictive laws passed by state legislatures. Moreover, the effort to disenfranchise or suppress votes in the name of "ballot security" runs the risk of antagonizing voters who, given a chance to vote, will inflict political losses on the party that tried to block their way.

Instead, we ought to be expansive in championing voting rights. I've worked in a lot of precincts over my decades in politics, and I understand full well that there are deficiencies in our voting laws and procedures. Registration records get skewed. Errors occur. Incompetence happens. Inadequate state or local resources result in confusing ballots, some precincts getting short-changed on voting machines, and voting machines breaking down.

Voting is an issue worth our sustained attention. But let's place our priorities where they belong: on ensuring the fairness, integrity and efficiency of our voting infrastructure and procedures, and assuring that qualified citizens exercise democracy's most fundamental right — voting.

What is important to talk about?

Communication has always been a key to success. Ask any businessman or woman and they will agree. Ask any teacher and they will also agree. Ask any coach and the answer is the same: communication is key to winning and losing. In the classroom, on the field and in the board room, talking to each other is a must.

Communication is also a key ingredient in good parenting. The conversation around a meal can be one of the most insightful times. Kids can learn how busy their parents are and parents can also learn about a school day or Snapchat. Kids can ask questions and parents can receive the always-first answer, "Nothing happened today." Political views, family plans, rules and groundings can all be discussed around the table of old, the dinner table.

Communication is key on other levels too. A conversation with your Creator is also important. God does listen and answer. Prayer is a way to still yourself and ask for the burdens in your life to be lifted. It is also a time to reconcile anything that is standing between you and God. But there is more to it than just prayer. There is a constant running conversation between the Mighty One and you, if you let it happen. Distractions are constantly getting in the way of that conversation, but we must prevail over those irritants to hear what we are supposed to hear. And you will hear Him if you want to.

Television, phones, people and pets are just some of the everyday things that prevent conversation. I find it ironic that a device created to communicate with others, mobile phones, can now be the very thing to keep you from conversation with a child, parent, co-worker or the Big Boss upstairs. The media age also is dangerous because even when we are trying to do something constructive, we get ambushed by false reports or other forms of attention-grabbing applications.

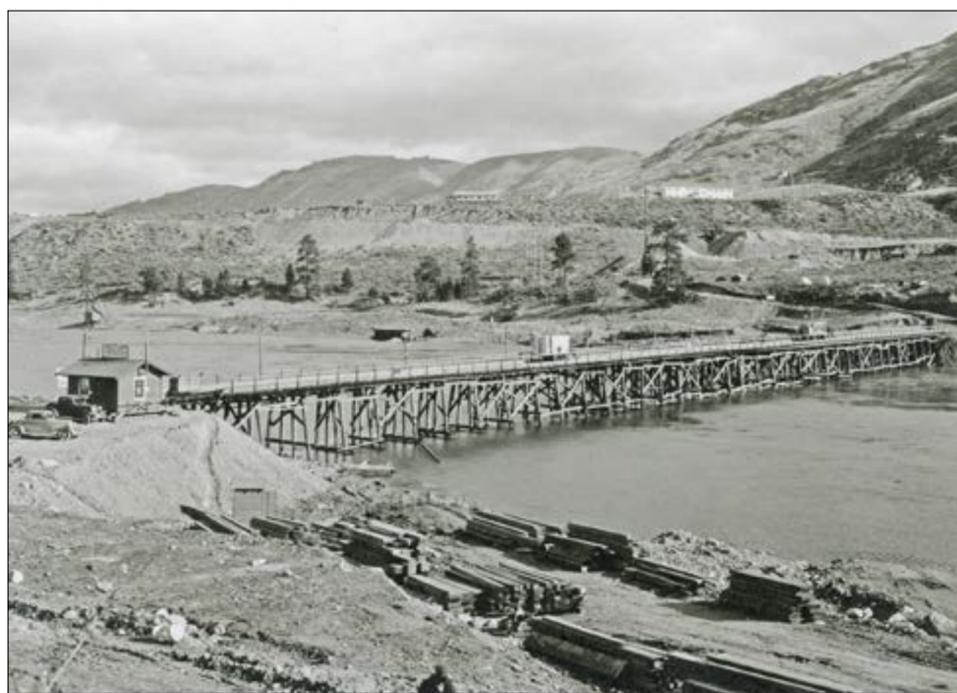

So talk. Talk to your kids, parents, teachers and friends. I hear you asking, "What am I going to talk about?" Well, Veterans Day is upon us. Talk about that, or talk about the election. That is a big deal. Ask about life and family and goals and ambitions.

Talk about Raider football going to the playoffs. Ask about God. God wants you to and wants to have a conversation with all of you. He is knocking, and you just have to let him in. Or at least answer the door. That is the first step to the greatest conversation you will ever have.

Yes, in this world of self-sufficient and intense media, we may begin to wander off course from our roots, but our roots are where it all began and we must get back to them. And getting back to them starts with a talk. A talk with family, with self and with God.

Jess, shut up!

Reginald E. (Reg) Morgan

Reg Morgan passed away Wednesday, October 19, 2016, at the home of his daughter and son-in-law in Tacoma, Washington.

He was born June 19, 1931, to Gemma Paglieri Morgan and Reginald E. Morgan Sr. in Seattle, Washington, graduating from West Seattle High School.

In 1980, his work in fisheries research with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service brought him to the Coulee for a fish population study on Lake Roosevelt. When that project ended in 1984, Reg retired and began a second career as a writer and volunteer.

For many years he wrote an outdoor column, "Outdoor Report," for the Wenatchee World and a general interest column, "Morgan's Musings," for the Grand Coulee Star. In addition, he had occasional columns in other regional newspapers and magazines.

Reg's volunteer efforts were many and varied. His care for young people was reflected in many of his activities. He began by keeping the clock for the high school girls' basketball team and worked with the Raider Booster Club. Reg greeted arriving students at the elementary school in Grand Coulee Washington, and received the PTA's Golden Acorn award for his faithful service. He served on the oral boards for Lake Roosevelt graduating seniors. To provide an alternative to prosecution for young offenders, Reg served on the Okanogan County Community Board. In a Santa suit made for him by Nellie Trefry, he played Santa at the Wright Elementary Christmas parties, as well as arriving on Christmas Eve at the homes of those wishing to surprise their children.

He was one of the founding members of Planet Earth Players and uttered the first lines on stage in their initial production, "Deadwood Dick," then continuing as an actor, producer and director. He volunteered at the visitor information booth in Coulee Dam for years.

Russell W. Kershner

Russell W. Kershner of Coulee City, Washington, passed onto the loving hands and embrace of our Lord, Jesus Christ, on Wednesday, November 2, 2016, in Grand Coulee Washington.

Mr. Kershner was born on December 13, 1941, in Williamsport, Pennsylvania, to William Kershner and Edith (Woodhouse) Kershner.

Mr. Kershner was a proud Vietnam Veteran as a member of The United States Army from 1960-1968. He served two tours of duty in Vietnam, where he was wounded in action during the second tour. He was honorably discharged with a combined eight medals/decorations.

When he returned to the states he went to work at Boeing in Seattle, Grand Coulee Dam and eventually became a pioneer in the installation of computer systems in lumber mills from Canada to Portland, Oregon.

As a Computer Analyst he started his own business earning contracts with many government agencies, including NASA, and private businesses such as IBM, until his retirement.

He was a member of the Coulee Dam ward of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, where he became an elder; the VFW, American Legion, Kiwanis Club, former Scout Master, and had met all of the requirements to acquire his Eagle Scout certificate.

He very much enjoyed fishing, traveling, gardening, genealogy, and UFO research, and watching football at every possible opportunity. In high school he was an active athlete participating in baseball, track and football.

Our daddy was an amazing, loving, and very special father, grandfather, friend and husband; first to our mother, Sharon, and then our second mother, Mary Anne. His passing will leave a profound void in the hearts of all of those who were fortunate

As a member of St. Benedict's and St. Henry's Catholic Churches, Reg sang in the choir and served as a lector. For many years, he administered the funds from Catholic Charities to help those in need and organized a group of area pastors to better serve those asking for help. He was one of St. Henry's parishioners who volunteered at the food bank and delivered Meals on Wheels for the meal program at the senior center.

Reg was a lifelong, avid fisherman and waterfowl hunter. He enjoyed the many hours fishing from his pickup at "Gezer Beach" and looked forward to the years when there was ice on Banks Lake for ice fishing. He appreciated the opportunities to hunt geese with Bob Pachosa and friends, and supplied the family with pillows and comforters made from the goose down. He brought the Ducks Unlimited banquets to the Coulee Area for several years, raising funds for that organization and making available wildlife art that still hangs in area homes. With Bill Brashears, he established the Banks Lake net pens to improve the fishing on Banks Lake. In the 1990s, he served on the Washington State Fish and Wildlife Commission.

MEMORANDUM

Date: November 4, 2016
 To: Okanogan Board of County Commissioners
 From: Josh Thomson P.E., County Engineer
 Ben Rough, Administrative Officer
 Subject: 2016 County Road Maintenance Expenditures on Colville Indian Reservation

Members of the public have asked about County road maintenance activities and expenditures within the Colville Indian Reservation, which falls primarily within County Road Maintenance Area 2. Okanogan County is the largest county in the state, with road maintenance responsibilities divided into six areas.

Okanogan County Public Works had expended just over $1,000,000 in labor, materials, and equipment on County road maintenance and snow removal activities within the boundaries of the Reservation in 2016 through mid-October. This includes $334,000 in chip seal and prelevel costs on La Grange Rd, an apron on Snyder Flat Rd, Malott Eastside Rd, Oak St, Okanogan Airport Rd, Okanogan Landfill Rd, Joe Moses Rd, Gold Lake Rd, and a small amount on Park City Loop Rd.

In addition to the maintenance costs above, we are spending over $1.2M on gravel for the Lyman Lake-Moses Meadows Road gravel project. This is a FEMA funded project, and would not be possible to this level without that funding.

A construction project is under way to replace bridge B-3 on Park City Loop Rd and bridge B-15 on Joe Moses Rd. B-3 had deteriorated to the point that it had to be closed to traffic last October, and B-15 was posted with a 5 ton weight limit at the same time. Immediately upon determining that these bridges were structurally deficient, Public Works began working to secure funding, environmental clearance, and an engineering firm to design the replacement for both structures. The total cost of this project is $2,088,000. This bridge replacement project received priority from all agencies involved, and came together in a very short time compared to what it usually takes to replace a bridge.

Okanogan County Public Works maintains a Snow and Ice Control Policy, which is available on our website at www.okanogancounty.org/PW. Public Works has a full-time employee who works out of the Agency, which makes snow plowing response much more expedient in the southeast portion of the Reservation. The remaining snowplows originate from our shop in Omak. Area 2 Road Supervisor: Guy Layton (509) 422-3952. County Engineer: Josh Thompson (509) 826-7300. Administrative Officer: Ben Rough (509) 826-7300.

Powell opens Spokane art gallery

Long-time Grand Coulee resident artist Keith Powell stands with some of his work at his new gallery in Spokane during its opening event last Friday night at 123 East Second Avenue. Powell said he'll open the gallery for events and by appointment, but will still be creating his art in Grand Coulee. Powell said he has opened temporary galleries in Spokane in the past and done "very well." The new Spokane venue, which grew from that concept, was filled with people Friday night.

Grant PUD commissioners set budget for 2017

Commission to review price increases early next year

EPHRATA — Grant PUD Commissioners adopted a $307.3 million budget for 2017 during their meeting on Nov. 8, the PUD announced Tuesday night.

The budget outlines funding so Grant PUD's 47,000 customers will continue to be served with affordable and reliable energy.

"Our 2017 budget reflects a commitment to long-term value creation for all customers," said General Manager Kevin Nordt. "Our customers have been very clear in what they seek — safe, reliable energy at a stable and predictable price."

Along with paying for the daily costs to operate the 47,000-customer utility's electric and telecommunications system, the budget includes funds for the rehabilitation of generators and turbines at Priest Rapids Dam, which are now almost 60 years old.

Funding is also included for upgrades to substations and additional electric system improvements attributed to the needs of our growing county, and new recreation amenities at Crescent Bar to enhance public access.

The financial forecast calls for an average 2-percent retail price increase. Commissioners will receive recommendations from staff regarding how the increase will be allocated across each customer class early in 2017. Following staff's recommendation, the board will give the public opportunities for input on proposed price increases before taking action.

District seeks buyer for school and property

by Roger S. Lucas

A notice went out this week seeking sealed bids for the purchase of Center School in Grand Coulee.

The elementary school was declared surplus after students there were transferred to the new school in Coulee Dam.

The school board had advertised for bids on the school earlier, but at the time no one was interested in bidding.

At the school board's last meeting, it was determined to seek bids again since three parties had indicated interest in the property.

Sealed bids will be received until 2 p.m., Dec. 1.

The school property includes the building plus property totaling just over eight acres.

Bid forms are available at the school district office.

The property was purchased by the school district from Continental Land Company in October 2014 for $155,000, and the property has since been appraised for $190,000.

Raiders defeat Irish in OT for first-round state spot

by Jacob Wagner

The Lake Roosevelt Raiders defeated the DeSales Irish in an incredible comeback victory Friday to move on to the first round of state playoffs. The victory in Coulee Dam marks the first time the Raiders have gone on to state since 2001.

The now 7-2 Raiders will face the 9-1 Northwest Christian Crusaders this Friday in Spokane.

On Friday's game against DeSales, the Raiders found themselves down 14-0 at halftime after DeSales' tall senior quarterback Zach Leahy ran for two touchdowns. Those were the only points the Raiders would let the Irish score.

"I think defense is our powerhouse," said senior Raider defensive back Nathaniel Hall. "I know that we can go out and stop them when we need stops."

In the third quarter, LR quarterback Steven Flowers rushed for a touchdown. A missed two-point conversion left the score at 14-6, DeSales.

Penalty markers flew frequently throughout the entire game. An LR defender intercepted a pass that was called out of bounds, and emotions were high on the Raider sidelines.

"Don't worry about the refs," Endsley told his players. "Just get over it. Play through it because you're not going to change any of their opinions."

The Raiders found themselves with the ball on their own three-yard line. Down by eight points with 97 yards to go, and less than two minutes left in regulation to score, the Raiders were in a tough spot. But the LR team appeared extremely in sync with one another as they powered down the field.

"We all came together and started playing as one," remarked running back Beau Michel.

With 40 yards to go, Flowers found senior wide receiver Tyrell Kiser open. Kiser juked a defender, and with help from a huge block from Hall, sprinted to the end zone, making the score 14-12.

The Raiders needed the two-point conversion to tie, and they did just that, the offensive line opening a wide lane for Flowers to run right up the middle into the end zone to tie the game as the crowd roared.

"I kind of just blocked everything out," Flowers said of the 97-yard, game-tying drive. "I told myself to calm down, count to 10, and did what I knew I could do. I found my guy wide open and he made the play."

Steven Flowers rushes through a wide hole for a two-point conversion that tied the game to force overtime. — Jacob Wagner photos

"He's a very clutch player," Head Coach Loren Endsley said of Flowers, who had 311 total yards in the game. "Something starts clicking, and all the sudden he hits the guys, right on target, perfect. He's done it countless times in games when we needed him to. It was good to see him step up when we needed him most."

In overtime, Lake Roosevelt started with the ball on the 25-yard line, as is standard in high school and college overtime rules. In a few short plays, the Raiders scored a touchdown on a Flowers rush, but missed the two-point conversion.

With the score at 20-14 LR, it was DeSales turn to try to answer back with a score of their own, but LR had all the momentum. On fourth down, the last chance for the Irish, Raider senior Beau Michel sacked their quarterback, ending their drive and the game, sending the Lake Roosevelt Raiders to state for the first time in 15 years.

"This is why you coach football ... for moments like these," said Endsley on a field crowded with celebrating Raider fans and players.

The Lake Roosevelt Raiders will play the first round of the state playoffs, facing off against the Northwest Christian Crusaders on Joe Albi Field in Spokane, on Nov. 11 at 7 p.m.
