Chief Operating Officer Scott Scharbach told commissioners on lease since 2008.

New car instead

The Grand Coulee police department plans to replace a 2006 patrol car after finding that repairs of the car would exceed its value. Chief Mel Hunt explained to the council that there was money set aside in the budget to buy a new vehicle. The patrol car had 113,000 miles on it.

Would-be gun club to meet

A group looking to get a gun club established at Washington Flats plans to meet at 6 p.m., Dec. 3, at the Appalachia Inn in Electric City, according to Mike Beatty. The group will attempt to meet officers and establish by-laws.

Charter charter OK’d

Grand Coulee’s council voted to modify the charter ordinance to make the town’s charter with the city. The cable television provider also known as Falcon Video Com- munity is being considered for the new board.

More students than planned

Enrollment in Grand Coulee Dam School districts shows growth over the same pe- riod last year. November’s count in all three schools was 678, compared to 634 last school year. The District President Orville Wilder stated that state law allows that swearing in occur 10 days before newly elected officials take office so they can get a running start in their new positions.

Port District to buy golf carts

Port District 7 commissioners approved a plan to purchase 21 golf carts that they have on lease since 2008.

District President Osvell Schubarth told commissioners that the carts would be paid for in three years.

The package includes the 21 carts and some 96 batteries, and includes a utility cart used for work around the golf course.

Separately the port district is looking for a new ferry operator. Schubarth said the new pur- chase arrangement, including the batteries, will save the golf course about $600 a month in payments. Payment on the carts and batteries will be about $1,800 a month for the operating months of the course. Monthly the carts and batteries will be cleaned, checked, and picked up the next spring.

The carts will end up costing the port district about $1,400 each, and the batteries about $170 each.

Port to look for golf course grant

Port district commissioners op- proved a plan at their meeting last Thursday to seek a grant to fix the Bank Lake Golf Course. The idea came from Frank Andrews, the district’s attorney, and grant writer for the Colville Confederated Tribe.

Andrews called commissioners’ attention to grants offered by Washington State Recreation and Conservation Office that cover golf courses, as well as other types of projects.

Commissioners liked the plan and quickly approved a plan to pro- ceed with the grant application.

Accordingly, Port District 7 will hold a public meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 12, at the meeting room at the golf course to accept public input on the grant application.

The RCO grant has a $500,000 cap, with some matching obliga- tion.

Andrews stated that some matching provisions allow for in-kind work, land and other assets.

The district will enter its third year of operating the golf course next spring, and has made sub- stantial investments in the 18- hole facility. Last summer saw the port make improvements to the course even though it used publicly volunteered help.

Eligible projects for the grants include, in addition to golf courses, include sidewalks, bike trails, community gardens, shooting and archery ranges, ski areas, go-kart tracks, snow beaches, swimming beaches, and parks, trails, and a variety of other things.

Andrews told commissioners that public input was a necessary ingredient of the grant applica- tion, which he said would not come without cost to the district.

“I am an enthusiastic golfer myself,” Andrews told the com- missioners.

Deadline for submitting the grant request is February with final decisions to be made in April.

Big price found for engine repair

Big price found for engine repair

Grand Coulee had a bit of stick-er shock when officials learned that it would cost about $20,000 to make repairs on its brush fire truck.

Fire chief Rick Parks told the council last Tuesday night that the fire truck had blown a head-gasket and when mechanics looked it over, they discovered that there was a factory error on the diesel engine that would have to be fixed — with a hefty price attached to it.

Parks explained to the council that one of the head bolts had been drilled crooked and it had caused major damage to the engine.

It was further explained to the council that fire officials had been in touch with the Cummins diesel company about the problem and the city would likely get some refunds on the cost of the problem.

Parks stated that the city could pay for the repair from the department reserve fund so the truck could be back in operation and when the city was reimbursed for the repair, the funds could go back into the reserve fund.

The truck, a 2006 Ford with a Cummins diesel engine, has 13,900 miles on it and was purchased for $265,000. Parks said the value of the truck now is about $150,000.

Art selection to start soon

By Roger S. Lucas

An art committee made up of local residents will begin the process of selecting some $40,000 worth of artwork for the new K-12 school complex.

Under state law, 1 percent of public funds for construction projects must be put aside to purchase artwork. Covered by this requirement is the original $14 million provided by the state for the project.

About half of the art allowance will come through the Washington State Arts Commission, which will provide ideas of specific professional art for selections. Named to the art selection group are Sara Chaffee, Carla Marconi, Lori Adkins, Nate Pitu-choit, Lisa Carleme, Lonna Buxton and Susan Dulce.

Art will be located in the elementary wing gym and in both cafeterias. Superintendent Dennis Carlson suggested.

The group will need to meet and make selections soon so that, if it takes some adjustment by the general contractor, he will know about it in time.

Carlson said existing artwork by Keith Powell and Virgil “Smoker” Marchand currently located at the Grand Coulee Dam Middle School will be removed and relocated to the new site.

Terrific and class pictures will also find a home in the new building building.

Carlson stated that a picture of Wright Elementary with its history is destined for the new site.

Grand Coulee library light-up set up for next Thursday

By Roger S. Lucas

It’s light the library time. A special program is planned for the Rihlto Anderson Grand Coulee Library on Thursday, Dec. 5 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

A special lighting of the library, a branch of North Central Regional Library, will be held at 225 Federal Avenue.

The ceremony will usher in the Christmas season in Grand Coulee with door prizes donated by local businesses, candle-making and refreshments And both the young and older patrons will get a picture of Santa Clause arrive in a Grand Coulee fire truck.

Visitors will also get acquaintance-ed with the services provided by the library.

Santa will be at the Coulee Dam Casino and in Grand Coulee Dam.

Norman Hudnall

Norman Hudnall passed away on Monday, Nov. 18, 2013. He was born June 13, 1927, in Omak, Wash., to Claude and Lucy (Holt) Hudnall. He married Mildred Morris on May 28, 1949, and they spent the last years traveling, ruling his Harley and enjoying their time in Washington and Oregon recently in South Carolina. He was a loving husband, father, brother, uncle, grand-father, and father-in-law. He will be deeply missed and never forgotten. He leaves us remembering his bright mind, wonderful sense of humor and his gentle spirit. “RIDE ON HONEY!”

Food bank gets boost

The Trees of Sharing trees, decorated with “wash” ornaments for more than 140 local children, are all around town. Trees are located in Grand Coulee at Fum- ners’ Hardware Pharmacy, and Glacier (formerly North Cascades National Bank), and at the Grand Coulee Federal Credit Union and Harvest Foods in Coulee Dam. You can contribute to a child’s joy by taking one or more ornaments from any one of the trees and shopping locally for a gift based on the information given on the ornament. Many secret gift choices for children are available at stores in the Grand Coulee Dam area. Be sure to check out these resources. Bless the children and the local merchants!

Wrapped packages with the ornament securely attached to the outside may be returned to any Trees of Sharing tree. Gifts need to be placed under the tree by Friday, December 15th so they can be sorted and prepared for delivery on Saturday, December 21st.

If you have questions or want to help with Trees of Sharing, please call Linda Black 633-3651 or Jean Sanford 633-1250. The Trees of Sharing is a community-wide program sponsored by local churches with the purpose of blessing Grand Coulee Dam Area children at Christmas time. The gift you provide lightens a child’s world during this season.

Dennis Conway

Dennis Conway, 63, of Conway, R.C., died suddenly on Wednesday, Nov. 20, 2013. Denny was born December 9, 1948, and grew up in Coulee Dam, Wash., creating a network of lifelong friends.

He graduated from Eastern Washington University and served his country in Korea, Vietnam, and the U.S. Army. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion.

He was preceded in death by his parents, Henry and Edna (Holt) Hudnall. He is survived by his wife, Helen; their three children, Cheryl Hudnall and husband David, Jules Hudnall and husband Donald, and Tim Hudnall and wife Judy; grandchildren: Michelle Tapscott (Hawaii), Melissa Burgwedel (Utah), Stacy Missel (Davenport, Wash.), Justin Pecoraro (Willow, Wash.), step-grandchildren: Steven Hudnall and Paul Holger of Spokane, 15 great-grand-children and 4 great-nieces and nephews.
